

"The second betrayal is complete!"

– UKIP's Gerard Batten SLAMS Theresa May and David Davis for selling out Britain's fishermen

UKIP Leader Gerard Batten today described the transitional agreement on fishing between Britain and the EU as a "second betrayal of Britain's fishermen" by the Tories.

The UKIP Leader said:

"Our fishermen were betrayed when we entered the EU and the European Union pieced together the awful Common Fisheries Policy. The second betrayal of Britain's fishermen is now complete. We could have a thriving fishing industry in the UK, but the Tories are happy to use our fish as a bargaining chip for their failing negotiations."

He went on to support calls by UKIP Fisheries spokesman Mike Hookem for a march on Downing Street:

"I'm calling on Britain's fishermen to march on 10 Downing Street and tell Theresa May and David Davis that Britain's fish are not up for grabs!"
